The Ice Conditions Favorable-Lieutonan Emory's Plans.

Secretary Chandler has received a report from Lieutenant Emory, commanding the Arctic steamer Bear, under date of St. Johns, May 3d, in which he says the ice conditions are considered favorable. If easterly gales have prevailed in the Arctic regions, as there is reason to believe, the ice will have set in motion to the sound sooner than usual. All the seal steamers report unusual quantities of ice on the straits of Belle island and the southstraits of Belle island and the souther er coast of Labrador. The Neptune was jammed in the ice, and her master, while regretting his inability to reach the best sealing-ground, suddenly found the ship surrounded by seals, and she returned to port loaded to her gunwales, baving 41,000 harps. At that place news can be obtained from Upernavik of February 15th, and a mail sent home via Copenhagen. Upon arriving at Upernavik, if the ice conditions are favorable for the passage of Melville bay, it will be attempted at once. Lieutenant Emory states that, in addition to the whalers Narwhal and Esquimau, the Arctic and Polonia were to sail the following week for Cape York and the north water, and that their departure two weeks earlier than was intended is due to the Greely reward. Several whalers have left Dundee for the same destination. All these vessels have instructions for the relief of the Greely party. Their intentions are to communicate with Captain York, and should they rescue the Greely party to land them at Upernavik. They have no au-thority to go beyond Littleton island. Lieutenant Emory adds: "I am led to be-lieve, even should the season prove most favorable, Commander Schley may be able to reach Upernavik before any vessel can undertake or attempt the passage of Melville bay. Should he not arrive before leave, I feel sure my decision to sail for

A DOWN-TOWN MERCHANT having passed several sleepless nights, disturbed by the agonies and cries of a suffering child, and becoming convinced that MRS. WINSLOWS SOOTHING SYRUP was just the article needed, procured a supply for the child. On reaching home and acquainting his wife with what he had done, she refused to have it administered to the child, as she was strongly in favor of Homeopathy. That night the child passed in suffering and the parents without sleep. Returning home the day following, the father found the baby still worse; and, while contemplating another sleepless night, the mothe stepped from the room to attend to some domestic duties and left the father with the child. During duties and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing Syrup to the baby and said nothing. That night all hands slept well, and the little fel-low awake in the morning bright and happy. The mother was delighted with the sudden and wonderful change, and although at first offended at the deception practiced upon her, has continued to us the Syrup, and suffering, crying babies and restles nights have disappeared. A single trial of the Sy rup never yet failed to relieve the baby and over ome the prejudices of the mother.
